Fritaliañol Usage Notes

- Spanish is rendered in light yellow; Italian in light green; French in light blue.
- A minus sign, such as in “-eux” or “habr-” indicates that these letters appear at the end or at the beginning of a word. A plus sign, such as in “+es” means that “es” should be appended to the end of the word in question (in this case, to the end of a French noun that is feminine plural, if given the masculine singular form).
- Remember that possessive adjectives agree with the noun that is possessed, not the possessor. Thus, in Spanish, “su padre” could mean his father, her father or their father, because “su” agrees in number with “padre”.
- ‘1s’ refers to ‘first person singular’; ‘3p’ refers to ‘third person plural’ and so on.
- ‘inf. stem’ means the infinitive stem.
- ‘Stem-changers’ in Spanish refers to verbs like pensar, whose stems change to diphthongs when stressed (pienso etc.).

Verb Conjugation System

The system outlined here is based on the idea of learning ‘principal parts’ and ‘ending sets’ and then putting them together according to some fairly simple rules. To use this system, you would only need to learn...

Principal parts [learn for each verb]	Infinitive 1s present 3p preterite Past participle	Infinitive 1s present 2s preterite Past participle	Infinitive 1p present 3p present 2s preterite Past participle
Ending sets	-ar endings (A) -er endings (E) -ir endings (I) Preterite endings	-are endings (A) -ere endings (E) -ire endings (I) Present subj. endings Imperfect subj. endings Preterite endings	-er endings (ER) -re endings (RE) -ir endings (IR) Imperfect endings (IM) Imp. subj. endings Preterite endings

...as well as the appropriate auxiliary verbs (all of which are listed), as well as the few little complications noted... and then you should be able to conjugate any regular verb in any tense, as well as cope with a few of the most common ‘irregularities’. The future tense endings for all 3 languages are merely the endings of the present indicative of ‘to have’, although accents need to be inserted on the underlined letters, and Italian has one annoying exception.
